as to be found) came by (126 L) today at one point -- primarily so that he could run into SRP and have a gravity railroad conversation. Very gratifying. How well I understand the motivation/ how well I understand the need. Reaching out and establishing coordinators. During my 8th period class, Mark Steven came by 126 L to inquire if I had had any luck in speaking with Ghigiarrelli. None, said I. We left it that I will find out from Ghigiarrelli what the story is and if he thinks that it will be a bad idea, then I will undertake the tour as a private non-school related walk with SRP.

- New gas tank will be installed on 11-13-84 -- 1 P.M.
No anti-freeze in my radiator is good to 35 degrees below zero. Not ought to carry me through the day, so to speak.

- one of Mark Steven's buddies came up as I was talking with MS. + said that his father, John Zavacki (876-5624) is also interested in going on the SR walk. Excellent. I believe that he said that the Germyn Explorers Club is going to go on a trip to the [PA.] Gravity tunnel -- William Hodge is somehow connected to the Germyn Explorers' Club.

Steamtown Director Slated As Speaker

Upvalley Bureau
Carbondale -- James Gillespie, director of Steamtown U.S.A., will be the guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of Carbondale Historical Society and Museum Friday at 6 p.m. at Andrew's Banquet Hall, 48 Gordon Ave., Carbondale. Gillespie, who took over as Steamtown director earlier this year, will discuss operations of Steamtown in Scranton and its impact on the Lackawanna Valley. He will also speak on the role Carbondale and the rest of the upper valley will play in future plans. S. Robert Powell, society president, added that Steamtown's first year in Scranton was "a complete success" and that it will have "an enormous impact" on the economy of not only Scranton but the entire region. Following Gillespie's presentation, the society will elect officers. Reservations for members and non-members may be made by contacting Howard Yepson, Susan Stephens or Powell.
